

A NEW PANEL
OF 100 MEN

Were on Hand When Haywood Case Re-opened

FROM REMOTE DISTRICTS

Report That Orchard Is Going—His Mind Is Found to Be False As Is Also Another Crop of Sensational Rumors.

Boise, Idaho, May 13.—Ranchers and stockmen will comprise the major part of the jury which will determine the fate of William D. Haywood, who is on trial for the murder of Governor Stuenkel. A special panel of 100 men from remote districts of Ada county were present when court resumed its sessions this afternoon. The town remains quiet in spite of the crops of sensational rumors. It is reported that Orchard is losing his mind and may not be fit to testify, that the lawyers of the defense are quarrelling over the questions of precedence and that the prosecution fears that the best witnesses may be "reached."

All were proven false to-day upon investigation. Haywood yesterday received his family under the trees on the court house lawn, and for an hour watched his youngest children play with a litter of Spitz puppies that looked like animated powder puffs. Pettibone looked on from a barred window and in the group on the lawn Sheriff Hodkin strolled with a few of his deputies. Attorneys Richardson and Darrow came later and talked for a time with their client. Governor Gooding, who spent the last few days on his extensive sheep ranch near Shoshone, returned to Boise yesterday.

MAY SPREAD THE STRIKE.

New York Longshoremen May Enlist Boston and Philadelphia.

New York, May 13.—President Patrick Connors, of the longshoremen's union expressed the opinion last night that the strike against the transatlantic steamship companies would be extended to Boston and Philadelphia if the companies sent their vessels to discharge and load at those ports. This the steamship officers here said they would do if sufficient help could not be obtained here. Mr. Connors' statement followed a meeting of the strikers at which he said it had been shown that not a man had deserted the ranks of the strikers while many strikebreakers had cast their lot with the men who were out. President Connors said further: "About 30,000 men are out now and we are prepared to fight all summer. We have had numerous offers of financial assistance, but we have refused all offers of aid thus far." Mr. Connors had heard nothing from the steamship union which he had previously stated would vote to go on strike last night. Local 448, of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters did hold a meeting today but it was subsequently stated that nothing was done relative to a strike in sympathy with the longshoremen.

FORAKER ISSUES
A STATEMENT

Says He Knows of No Deal or Compromise in Ohio and Thinks Cox Is For Harmony.

Washington, D. C., May 13.—Senator Foraker of Ohio, issued a statement last night on the Ohio situation, in reply to Representative Burton, saying that so far as he (Mr. Foraker) was concerned, no effort whatever has been made to make a deal, bargain or a compromise with anybody about anything; that the statement issued by George B. Cox of Cincinnati was not in Mr. Foraker's interest or with his approval, but he thought Mr. Cox was striving for party harmony and he (Mr. Foraker) was willing to accept the results of the convention should act favorably on Mr. Cox's recommendation. The senator says all questions of endorsement and nomination should not be forced until the next convention, and he would not regard as binding any action taken meanwhile by any individual or committee not authorized to settle these questions for Ohio Republicans.

The senator reiterates that he will request that the call for the next state convention be held at the place designated by the various counties at primaries. Mr. Foraker in his statement said: "I make this last statement because the newspapers announce that a call has been issued for a meeting of the Republican state central and executive committee with the county chairmen and the Republican members of Congress to be held in Columbus May 15, at which it is proposed to confer about the political situation in Ohio, and possibly take some action with the preference of the ticket."

CONFESSED MURDER OF COMPANION

Maine Lad Killed Another Because of Boyish Difficulty—Body of Murdered Boy Found on Edge of Swamp.

Brunswick, Me., May 13.—Cherishing resentment over a boyish quarrel which took place two weeks ago, Sydney Long, 16 years old, shot and killed Morris W. Heath, 15 years, in Brunswick Saturday night. The crime was not discovered until yesterday when M. S. Heath, father of the murdered boy, found the body buried under pine spines and leaves at the edge of a swamp. Preble was arrested and immediately confessed the crime.

Preble said that two weeks ago he kicked Heath's dog and the boy repaid him for it, saying that if Preble did such a thing again he (Heath) would kill him. Saturday evening Preble accompanied Heath part way home from a neighbor for some distance further on as they reached a lone spot in the woods Preble suddenly fired a charge from a shotgun at Heath, blowing off his head and killing him instantly.

A Story of the Murder. At six o'clock Saturday night Preble went to the sawmill where Heath was employed and waited until the latter finished work, when the two started out together toward Heath's home, about a quarter of a mile distant. Most of the way was along a road lined with woods on either side of the road.

Preble, then, according to his statement, dragged the body from the roadside into some bushes, a few feet which required a great deal of effort as he himself is a youth of slight build, weighing only eighty pounds. When he had reached the bushes with his burden, he heard a team approaching and concealing himself until it had passed.

Peering through the bushes from his hiding place Preble saw the team driven by his victim's father, and that Mr. Heath's attention in passing was attracted to the pool of blood which stained the dust of the road. Mr. Heath, however, continued on his way and afterward young Preble dragged the body further into the spot where he had seen the team where he covered it with pine needles and leaves and left it. A little later Preble appeared at the Heath farm and told Mr. Heath that his (Preble's) father had killed a dog in the road and that it was that which caused the blood stains there.

As young Heath had occasionally spoken his evenings in the village, his parents were not particularly alarmed at his failure to return home to supper and it was not until Sunday morning that search was begun for the boy. On the way to the village to look for his son, Mr. Heath pulled the spot where he had seen the blood stains Saturday night, and nothing marks indicating that something had been dragged from the roadside, he followed the trail into the bushes and discovered the body of his son.

He notified the authorities, who went to the scene and charged him with the crime. Preble confessed to the deed without any hesitation and added that he had intended to go to Bath to-day and make his confession to the judge of the municipal court of that city. That, he said, was the reason for borrowing young Heath's bicycle, as he desired to use it in his trip to Bath.

According to Preble's story he had carefully planned the killing, and he said that the reason for his desire to put Heath out of the way was a reprimand administered to him by young Heath about a fortnight ago, when Preble kicked Heath's dog and Heath said: "I'll kill you."

POLICE HUNT FOR FACTORY FIREBUG

Claremont, N. H., Authorities Regard Monadnock Mills Blaze Incendiary.

Claremont, N. H., May 13.—That the mysterious fire in the Monadnock mills Saturday was incendiary is not doubted by the management of the mills. Late last night after the second fire was out, Second Assistant Engineer Frank W. Leach discovered a brick blaze in the spinning room on the fourth floor of No. 2 mill. Timely discovery only prevented another serious blaze. A suspicious fact is that the fire occurred when the automatic sprinkler system was undergoing repairs, leaving a portion of the plant unprotected. BAIL-JUMPER
IS PINCHED

Rose Brassaw Thought It Had All Blown Over

SO CAME BACK TO BARRE

She Was Arrested on January 9, Disappeared January 11 and Was Arrested on Bench Warrant Last Evening.

If Rose Brassaw had kept away it might have been all right for her, but she tempted fate and the Barre police and returned. Last evening she was locked up. Rose is the woman who blew a farewell kiss to the town on January 11, the day before she was to have been tried on the charge of keeping a house for immoral purposes, and thereby forfeited her credit with the Barre city court, her word having been taken in lieu of $500 bail.

At that time the complaint was filed away for future reference. Perhaps Rose didn't know it and reckoned that a lapse of four months ought to have effaced her from the memory of the police. But she reckoned on false premises. The memory of the Barre police, with the prompting of Grand Juror Davis, is good. So when Rose returned (she is said to have got back Saturday night), the old complaint was fished out of a pigeon-hole and on the strength of it she was arrested last night as being a bail-jumper. There was great indignation among the women's friends on River street, and one of the male contingent zig-zagged to the police station to effect her release, but lost his courage at the door and left the woman to her fate.

Rose herself expressed great surprise that she should be arrested and frankly told the police that she thought the old complaint had out-lived. With that idea in her mind she had decided to return to Barre and again take up her residence here. The police told her that she had still to face the charge of keeping a house of ill-fame, and locked her in jail for the night, not relying this time on any $500 promises. She was arrested at a house on River street, where it was said that she had been living. When she was arraigned on January 9 to answer to the charge, she pleaded not guilty and Judge Scott continued the case for three days, which gave the woman an opportunity to pack up and leave.

This morning Judge Scott fixed the date for her hearing as Friday, May 17, and not taking any chances sent the woman to the county jail at Montpelier this forenoon. Attorney M. M. Gordon appeared for her.

Another Woman in Custody.

Mrs. Albon Kimplin was arrested this morning by Deputy Sheriff Camp on a warrant charging her with keeping a house of ill-fame on Mount Street. She was arraigned before Judge Scott and pleaded not guilty. The case was continued until next Saturday for a hearing and she was taken to the county jail, being unable to furnish bail of $300. This is the same house at which Della Haroon was arrested recently on the same charge and the case is now pending in court.
